Colleges, as it focuses on training individuals, has offered internship & training opportunities that students don't want to miss. Wednesday, October 5 @ 6pm.

Happiness is knowing that the submitted works based on the fulfillment of the stated criteria were evaluated by the committee. The ten Al Multaqa Prize nominees came as follows (listed in alphabetical order): Algeria. The ten Al Multaqa Prize nominees included different countries: Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Libya, Iraq, Sudan, Oman, Kuwait, and Tunisia. The committee also looked at the spirit of innovation, novelty, and consistency of forms and content, as well as the presence of an integrated and linked storyline in the selected short stories. The jury will continue its work.

The committee also looked at the spirit of innovation, novelty, and consistency of forms and content, as well as the presence of an integrated and linked storyline in the selected short stories. The jury will continue its work.

Al Multaqa Jury Members are:

- Ahmad Al-Masoud (Chair of the Jury)
- Ezzat Al-Qamhawy (Jury Member)
- Dr. Jafri Al-Adeem (Jury Member)
- Dr. Fadya Al-Faqeer (Jury Member)
- Dr. Ali Ajail Al-Anezi (Jury Member)
- Ahmed Al-Madeeni (Chair of the Jury)

The committee also looked at the spirit of innovation, novelty, and consistency of forms and content, as well as the presence of an integrated and linked storyline in the selected short stories. The jury will continue its work.

The committee also looked at the spirit of innovation, novelty, and consistency of forms and content, as well as the presence of an integrated and linked storyline in the selected short stories. The jury will continue its work.

Dr. Ahmed Al-Madeeni (Chair of the Jury)
Dr. Fadya Al-Faqeer (Jury Member)
Dr. Ali Ajail Al-Anezi (Jury Member)
Ezzat Al-Qamhawy (Jury Member)
Ahmed Al-Madeeni (Chair of the Jury)

The committee also looked at the spirit of innovation, novelty, and consistency of forms and content, as well as the presence of an integrated and linked storyline in the selected short stories. The jury will continue its work.

The committee also looked at the spirit of innovation, novelty, and consistency of forms and content, as well as the presence of an integrated and linked storyline in the selected short stories. The jury will continue its work.

TRANSACTIONS

Marriott International, Inc. announced today that it has entered into an agreement with Starwood Hotels & Resorts Worldwide, Inc. to combine the world’s two largest and most comprehensive hotel groups to create the world’s largest and most comprehensive travel company.

The new company will operate or franchise more than 5,700 properties and 1.1 million rooms, including 300 trading brands from the moderate to luxury in over 110 countries. With the addition of Starwood’s strong brands, the combined company will have more than 142,000 associates and more than 1,100 properties in the Middle East and North Africa.

The combined company’s new loyalty program will bring together Marriott’s and Starwood’s loyalty programs, the longest-running rewards programs in the industry, and combine more than 70 million loyalty members from Marriott’s 40+ participating hotel brands and 7 million loyalty members from Starwood’s 26+ participating hotel brands.

The combined company will be headquartered in Bethesda, Maryland, and will be led by Arne Sorenson, who will continue as President and Chief Executive Officer. The chairman of the combined company’s board will be Stephen J. Root, who will continue in that role. The combined company intends to continue to pursue and master the art of writing Arabic short stories.

Marriott International, Inc. announced today that it has entered into an agreement with Starwood Hotels & Resorts Worldwide, Inc. to combine the world’s two largest and most comprehensive hotel groups to create the world’s largest and most comprehensive travel company.

The new company will operate or franchise more than 5,700 properties and 1.1 million rooms, including 300 trading brands from the moderate to luxury in over 110 countries. With the addition of Starwood’s strong brands, the combined company will have more than 142,000 associates and more than 1,100 properties in the Middle East and North Africa.

The combined company’s new loyalty program will bring together Marriott’s and Starwood’s loyalty programs, the longest-running rewards programs in the industry, and combine more than 70 million loyalty members from Marriott’s 40+ participating hotel brands and 7 million loyalty members from Starwood’s 26+ participating hotel brands.

The combined company will be headquartered in Bethesda, Maryland, and will be led by Arne Sorenson, who will continue as President and Chief Executive Officer. The chairman of the combined company’s board will be Stephen J. Root, who will continue in that role. The combined company intends to continue to pursue and master the art of writing Arabic short stories.